FOREWORD

BY LIEUT.-COLONEL EDGAR DIBDEN

COMMISSIONER CATHERINE BRAMWELL-BOOTH has requested me to write the Foreword to the illuminating report of the work of the Mothers' Hospital which I most earnestly commend to all our friends. Splendid though the report may be, it can but give a few glimpses of the excellent work which is being carried on at this well-known and exceedingly valuable Institution.

The Mothers' Hospital has been referred to as the beautiful Hospital with the ugly frontage. The up-to-date Bungalow Wards and the excellent lay-out of the grounds and the buildings, all of which are the admiration of our visitors, are completely hidden by the old front buildings in which the Clinics are held. These old houses are totally inadequate for our present purposes and are long overdue for demolition. The writer of the report has done well in emphasizing the need for better and more up-to-date accommodation for the Out-Patients, and we rejoice that in the course of a few weeks the erection of the new Out-Patients' Department will be commenced.

As I write I visualize a colony of happy people, all of whom have been born at the Mothers' Hospital and the associated Districts—for no less than 65,774 births have taken place since the work commenced. I also picture an exceedingly large number of devoted and self-sacrificing women in all parts of the world who received their training at the Mothers' Hospital and who are now lovingly ministering to the needs of the neglected people in missionary countries such as China, India, and Africa. Yes, the influence of the Hospital is world-wide.

Some one has called the Hospital a 'TEMPLE OF MOTHERHOOD,' and indeed it is. Those who are conversant with the Maternity and Child Welfare conditions are unanimous that more propaganda amongst mothers is needed, better education and more experience for doctors and midwives, and further provision of Maternity Beds. We are playing our part in these directions. Undoubtedly the Hospital is in the forefront with regard to the teaching of the art of Mothercraft. Then there are the Special Courses for Post-Graduate Medical Women and our well-established Training School which has been surprisingly successful in connection with the training of Nurses for the C.M.B. Examination, and whilst we have through the years gradually increased the number of maternity beds, further extensions have only been retarded by lack of funds.

Whilst we rejoice in the accomplishments we remember with gratitude the excellent co-operation of Lady Barrett and the Medical Staff and the devoted services of the Matron and the Nursing Staff, and we are indeed grateful for the generous support which we have received from the King Edward's Hospital Fund, the Ministry of Health, the London County Council, and the many Authorities and Friends who never fail to contribute to the Hospital funds.

The Mothers' Hospital is truly a never-failing place of counsel and help in all difficulties associated with motherhood. But this is not all—it is a place of peace and for many the birthplace of a new outlook on life. The beautiful Christian influence and the sympathetic understanding of the Staff who endeavour to live in accordance with the teaching of the Lord Jesus Christ are a source of inspiration and blessing to the patients.

Oh thou bright thing, fresh from the Hand of God,
The motions of thy dancing limbs are sway'd
By the unceasing music of thy being!
Nearer I seem to God when looking on thee.

When looking at her babe it is true that many a mother has realized, perhaps for the first time, the nearness of a loving Heavenly Father, and has left the Hospital with new hopes, strong faith, and a determination to live out all that is highest and noblest, and to lead the child in the ways of truth and righteousness.

We hope the reading of the Report and the examination of the Financial and Statistical Tables will lead our friends to pay a visit to the Hospital, for we know that in so doing further interest will be stimulated. The Staff of the Hospital are doing their utmost to meet the needs of those who seek their help. Will you heartily co-operate by making some special gift in support of the work ? Please do !

THE MOTHERS' HOSPITAL

IN the recently published 'New Survey of London Life and Labour,'* which looks back over the past forty years, Sir A. Newsholme refers to the remarkably lowered death-rates from child-bearing in the crowded Eastern and Southern areas, and observes: 'It is difficult to dissociate this fact from the provision of skilled midwifery attendance and ante-natal care in connection with medical and midwifery schools.'

Of such schools The Mothers' Hospital has long been in the forefront, receiving and tending the women, and training and sending out nurses to their tiny overcrowded homes.

'No longer,' writes P. Harris, M.A., M.P. (in 'London and Its Government') 'is the working woman in the most critical moment of her life left to the tender mercy of some gaunt female, unqualified and dirty, with nothing to recommend her but the smallness of her fee.'

Improved Conditions for Motherhood

In the East End there are now whole families of children who have been attended into the world by Salvation Army nurses; sometimes young wives, booking the services of the older nurses will say, 'Do you remember? When I was about four I used to hold the soap for you, and roll up the binders! Mother always had you, and so must I!'

Remembering the days when 'Mother' required her services, nurse cannot but marvel occasionally at the improved conditions for motherhood now. Not only are the poor provided with milk, medicine, outfit, etc., free, but it is a common experience to find a woman with a large family allowed even a municipal 'home help,' a kind of handy-woman who for a fortnight cleans and cooks and attends to the needs of the family, in order that mother may have the rest and freedom from worry necessary for the future little citizen's welfare.

A Holiday in Dreamland

Nevertheless, when such women reach the Mothers' Hospital, they think of the fortnight there as of a holiday in dreamland. The cosy little ward of six beds, with its flowers and flickering fires; the green grass and trees outside the windows, where one's bed may be wheeled on a sunny day; the good food; the cheerful and hopeful atmosphere all foster the impression.

'We seem this year to have more of the very poor than ever before,' a Sister told us, thinking of her many patients with husbands out of work or with wages 'lower than the dole!'

'Now you will rest when you get home?' she says doubtfully to the little woman just departing with her seventh, and the eldest only twelve years old. 'I'll do my best, Sister,' comes the half apologetic reply, 'but I must be back at work at the end of the month.'

There is a delightful camaraderie between these women-patients, all on the poverty line. The mother who told nurse, 'My husband will be bringing the baby-clothes,' was hoping against hope that during her time in hospital he would at last get a job (he was a gardener) and be able to fulfil her promise; but as the days passed the others noticed her increasing despondency. The leading spirit whispered one morning behind the screen, 'Sister, we've all put together, and here's 3s. 6d.; could you buy some baby clothes for Mrs. B——, just a few?'

Sister put aside the cash; but gathered together a big bundle of wee garments for her to give Mrs. B——. When she did so, after the visiting hour, that little woman promptly burst into tears ; one of the husbands, running back to express an afterthought, was astounded to find the roomful of cheerful women he had just left all weeping. ‘ Oh, go along,’ his wife laughed between her sniffs, ‘ we’re only having a good cry together !’

Mrs. B—— was again overcome when, on leaving the hospital, the 3s. 6d., made up to 10s. by the Sister’s efforts, was handed to her with another bundle of clothes and prayers and good wishes for the future.

Making an inspection a few months ago, an eminent surgeon, who is well acquainted with hospital equipment and buildings, expressed great admiration for the bungalow blocks, the spaciousness of the grounds, the airiness of the wards, and the first-class operating theatre. ‘ It really is a beautiful hospital,’ remarked one of the Honorary Staff of Physicians and Surgeons to the writer. ‘ People looking at the rather dull frontage can get no idea how perfect it seems to a doctor’s eyes. Only one thing is not up to modern standards ; the out-patients’ accommodation has been hopelessly cramped for years, and this not only makes things very uncomfortable for the patient, but renders our work less satisfactory.’

The importance of that work is being more generally recognized every year. It is indeed obvious that a good ante-natal diagnosis may result in treatment which obviates all kinds of complications at birth. And afterward the skilled guidance of mother during baby’s first year or two may benefit him all through life.

What will he Become ?

‘ What do the years hold for you ? ’ must be the passing thought of many a doctor or nurse as she looks at the latest arrival. The feebly waving limbs, the faint cries, the clenching of minute fists speak of the beginnings of effort and struggle ; but she can make no guess as to the manner of man he will become. This new year our monthly magazine* published an account of a Jewish boy-poet, whose printed memoir, ‘ The Voice of Albert,’ had revealed the fact that he was born at the Mothers' Hospital. On reading of this boy, the retired Matron, Lieut.-Colonel Castle, wrote concerning another little 'child of the Hebrews': 'As an infant he seemed determined not to live; his mother was often in despair over his many relapses. However, after months of patient care from her, guided by our Child Welfare Staff, he made some progress. Many years passed. A few months ago I met the mother in the street. To my inquiry about the delicate baby, which I half feared might arouse only a painful memory, she exclaimed, "Oh, I am glad I met you, I wanted you to know. Matron, he is so well and strong. He did well at school, and passed all his exams. at the London Hospital, some with honours. Now he has a splendid position as house surgeon in a county hospital."'

What lies ahead for the triplets born last November? They are all flourishing, thanks largely to the ante-natal treatment prescribed by the Honorary Medical Staff; the member we have already quoted confesses: 'I had told the mother there were at least two; I didn't dare to say three, in case in her impoverished condition (the father is unemployed) she should collapse.' But when they came, Mrs. English was both plucky and proud of her healthy little trio.

We peeped into the old out-patients' department. Three or four small inconvenient rooms on the ground floor were overflowing with mothers and babies. The morning before there had been fifty-three ante-natal patients; sometimes as many as thirty dental extractions have to be made in one afternoon.

'Serious Case of Overcrowding!'

'We are crowded out the whole day, and every day—except Sunday,' admitted the Sister-in-Charge. 'At what time do we start? Nine-thirty "officially," but we are ready for those who must often call earlier. There is a woman now who comes in at eight; she is the breadwinner, trying to keep herself fit for work as long as possible; ten minutes' treatment, and back she hurries to the factory round the corner.' After having booked her bed, we learned, this woman cancelled it. Invited to come and talk things over, the reason appeared; new difficulties had arisen and she could not hope to pay the fee. But she is coming in, having found to her great relief that at the Mothers' Hospital one's circumstances are always considered ; nobody is turned away.

From the inner room, where the physician-specialist sat with her stethoscope applied to a tiny chest, and two other medical women worked behind screens, we stepped out between packed rows of mothers and infants waiting their turn.

' One scared-looking daddy was sitting here last week,' smiled the Sister. ' He is a baker working by night, and so can look after the children while mother is in the fever hospital. But she had written that baby " should now be getting on to hard food—better see what The Army nurses say." So daddy had trundled the two along in the pram, valiantly facing the ordeal of the women, to get the advice which would relieve his anxious wife.'

It is good to learn from Lieut.-Colonel Dibden, the Secretary-Superintendent, that in spite of the present financial tension, trusting to the generosity of friends, the urgently needed extension is now to be put in hand. A scheme for the erection of a building for ante-natal and post-natal work and for a Child Welfare Clinic will be completed before the next report appears.

The Stress of Nursing

The provision also of sixteen single rooms for nurses is of much satisfaction to the Matron, Staff-Captain Knott, and staff, and will lessen another serious handicap. Especially since ' The Lancet ' Commission the stress of nursing life is widely appreciated. It is natural that young women who adopt the exacting profession should choose a hospital which can provide them with comfortable accommodation for their scanty leisure, as most hospitals now do. Norwegian, American, Swiss, and Swedish missionaries, among others, have come for C.M.B. training during the past year. The Swiss had returned from her post in Africa, and the American from India, having found that this special knowledge was necessary to the effectiveness of their work. On the other hand, several of our Army C.M.Bs have gone to other hospitals to complete their general training ; the matron of one very large and up-to-date South London institution accepts all who apply, valuing their combination of religion with hard work. Her confidence has been justified; one of her Salvationist-nurses is heading the exam. list this spring; another was the hospital's Gold Medallist of a year or two ago.

How does the religion of a nurse work out? In no sphere are mere words of less worth. ('After all, I guess religion is mainly judged by deeds,' wrote home a young Australian gold-hunter, to whom some mountain monks recently gave comfort of bed and board.)

The Army nurse's most potent moment invariably follows deeds done beyond the circumscribed round, practical signs of an interest in a little family which reaches out beyond the brief ten days when she touches it through tiny baby hands; indeed into their whole future.

Religion in Deeds

Says a nurse to a very young father in a one-room home: 'How many times have you nursed this baby?'

'Oh—er—it's rather tiny,' he demurs.

'Come on,' she says, settling the wee bundle in his shrinking arms, 'it's dad's business as well as mother's.' He does not know (though his wife does) that nurse has timed her visit to catch him in, and to get him interested in the new responsibility, instead of going out every evening. And her plan succeeds.

Sometimes she will stay a minute or two longer to cast on the stitches for a tiny vest which she has induced a young mother to attempt while lying in. 'She don't do anything like that,' grins the husband; but he has bought at nurse's suggestion the ounce of white wool and the needles. 'You wait and see,' says nurse, a prediction justified a few weeks later, when a baby in bright woollies will be proudly exhibited in the Child Welfare room. 'Nurse showed me how to make a vest, and then I thought I'd try these.'

Two of the Sisters with the babies born during the Christmas Season, 1932

Early arrivals for the Child Welfare Clinic

It is this kind of background which may make a mother say shyly, after nurse's prayer when baby comes, or at the end of the ten days, 'I do notice what you say,' or 'Thanks! It was all about what I want.'

Let us follow the nurses, as they have followed the people, to the great new 'cities of the poor'—some almost as big as Brighton—which an enlightened government has built far from the old crowded and insanitary streets. In the bright little houses, set in gardens which were grassland a year or two ago, they are more than welcomed by patients old and new. For the trek from the city left hospitals also behind. Now four or five rooms 'take some getting used to' if you, and your parents, and their parents, have never lived in more than two! What is a bathroom for, anyway? When young Mrs. A—— produced a baby of 11½ lb., nurse had to step about briskly; but she stopped short at the sight of the bath. Silver sand and pebbles and water made quite a realistic 'river-bed' for several darting orange streaks. 'My husband's so fond of his goldfish, nurse,' explained the new mother half proudly!

'Keeping Up Appearances'

The great improvement in the people's health cannot but be noticed. 'That's the worst of living out here, the children eat too much,' laughs a jolly mother of nine small girls; her year-old twins and their smallest sister are the pride of the nurses. Nevertheless, life has its problems, even in these new homes, especially for the numerous small 'master men' whose trade has failed, and for whom no dole or relief of any kind comes in. What with keeping up the rent, and 'appearances,' and keeping out the wolf, our nurses see strain and mal-nutrition written on brave faces, and must adjust their fees, or even forgo them entirely. They have also to battle with the depression that descends upon such mothers when they face the prospect of an added mouth to feed. One locked her six children into the front room the other day. A canvasser fortunately called, and at his knock a frightened child put her head out of the window to say, 'We don't know where mummie is, and there's an awful smell of gas——'

When mummie came out of the Infirmary, nurse called to invite her to the Home League.* 'I'll come if you will be there,' she agreed. Every week now she goes, and gets cheered up, and helped to battle on till brighter days.

It was just a poor little cockney girl-patient, so grateful and appreciative of the Hospital nurses' efforts at Christmastide to cheer herself and her unemployed husband, among others, who suddenly exclaimed, with the light of a great discovery on her pinched face, 'Dear, dear, you sit up and look at all these little kids in their cots, and doesn't it make you think of the little baby Jesus !' She 'never went anywhere' ; perhaps it was her first serious thought of the Christ.

And in the same way the babe who lies beside a girl in the Unmarried Mothers' block may bring some regenerating thought. This is our devoted Officers' belief and experience, as they work in the six homes, 'Cotland,' 'Cotswold,' 'Lorne I,' 'Lorne II,' 'Sapsworth House,' and 'Hope Lodge,' which for so many are the door back to a useful and happy life.

PLEASE DO NOT FORGET US!

NOTICE TO FRIENDS

We are very much in need of Funds, and earnestly appeal to those who are about to make their WILL, and desire to help the WOMEN'S SOCIAL WORK of THE SALVATION ARMY.

The Claims are Great! YOU CAN HELP!

All kinds of property can be legally bequeathed for charitable purposes, and the following form of legacy is recommended. Where a legacy does not consist of an amount of money, care should be taken to clearly identify the property, or shares, or stock intended to be bequeathed:

*' I GIVE AND BEQUEATH to The Salvation Army to be used and applied for the purposes of the Mothers' Hospital or the Women's Social Work section of its " Darkest England " Social Scheme and to be paid or transferred with that object to the Custodian Trustees of such Scheme (whose receipt shall be a good discharge) the sum of £.....(or) my two freehold houses known as Nos.....in the County of.....
(or) my £.....ordinary stock of the London Midland and Scottish Railway Company (or) my shares in .....Limited (or as the case may be) free of duty, AND I DIRECT the said named legacy to be paid within twelve months after my decease.'*

DIRECTIONS FOR EXECUTION OF WILL

The Will must be executed by the Testator in the presence of two witnesses, who must sign their names, addresses, and occupations at the end of the Will. The best method to adopt, for a Testator to be quite sure that his Will is executed properly, is for him to take the Will and his two witnesses into a room, and tell the witnesses that he wishes them to attest his Will. All three must sign in the room, and nobody must leave until they have all signed.

GENERAL HIGGINS will always be pleased to procure further advice for any friends desiring to benefit the Women's Social Work of The Salvation Army, or the ' Darkest England ' Scheme by Will or otherwise, and will treat any communications made to him on the subject as strictly private and confidential.

Letters dealing with the matter should be marked 'Private,' and addressed—

THE FINANCE SECRETARY, 101 Queen Victoria Street, London E.C. 4.
